that patriotism and statesmanship have not. This has became more positive since the time for the Democratic Convention drew nigh, and it became apparent that whoever they nomilated would be elected, and that upon a platorm locking to an armistice and a convention, We must not suppose, however, that it is the President's fears that have wholly hefin enced him. It may be a grand strategic move ment to forestall the Democrats, and at the same time come no nearer to peace than ever. We siready know of Mr. Lincoln's ingenuity in matters of this kind, from his fargous episality he is doing the very thing best calculated to prolong the war.

To go late the canvass with this-to be able to say to Democrats that the peace they are wishing has already been rejected by the rebels—its a trick in politics about on a level kees that has been pretending to "parsue" him with the capacity of Mr. Lincoln, who is notorionsly more ingenious than when. It would be considered by him and his party as a grand flank movement, or scint, by which nothing was given up, and yet all was gained that they will be the corrected husbandinan and fru-while he, like a coreful husbandinan and fruwanted-te-wit : a continuance la office.

For this reason we think if the ramor proves true, the President, in offering terms for an armistles or convention, will make them of such a character as will intallibly prethem of such a character as will intallibly pretent their accompance. It was what he sild in them of such a character as will intallibly pre-

We don't think, however, that this is even necessary for the terms proposed by Mr. Lincoin to be rejected. The rebels have no belief In his honesty. They believe he would defeat them by some trick. Nor is this all. The party which has always been allied with the South is on the eve of coming into power. Would it not be better for them to wait and trust to negotiations with them rather than to confer with those who are governed by generations of hostility? I. does not seem to require government to be more favorable to Southern institutions than the present Administrationeven if they were prejudeed against them, it would be apparent that In the event of their success it would be with them and not with Mr. Lincoln that pegotiations must take place. Negotiations with any one else might prove fooligh and useless in the extreme. It is such arguments as these that will be used in the South to prevent their accepting the offer hom our Government of even a convention of the States, as dit will be used with off et, with great off ch lis rejection, if effored, will, unquestions bly, be injurious to the prospects of the Democratic party. Tue refusal to accept apparently fair tarms, no matter upon what grounds, will aid the Republicans and promote Mr. Llucolu's chances. We fear, therefore, that the rumer may prove true, and the consequence be to prolong the war.

The air has been filled with rumors of a'l kinds in the isst few days, all pointing to some decided movement in the Republican ranks. The most probable of them is that Mr. Lincoln will withdraw in favor of some one else, who has gained the batted and score of the people by his urjust acts.

We have before observed that, having slways deserved the lil will of the public, he has lately endured the hitterest censures and de nunciations of his own party. They heap up on his soulders all the blame which attaches to the policy of his party, and for which they are equally responsible with him. They now propose a change; to jut some one clas in his place, in spite of his apothegm about chang ing horses while crossing a stream. They are of the opinion, evidently, that it is always right to swap off a bad horse for a good one, no matter where it is done. They are very positive about his being a very bad horse a'so, and are not particular in eaying l'.

This feud has arisen partly from Fremont who has not besitated at a division in the Reublican party when he thinks it may promote clear to him. In this he is sustained by fully half of his party, and has the decided power to defeat Mr. Liucoln and the disposition to exercise it. For this reason we think it is quite likely that a change will be made, and Sprague, of Rhede Island, or come other recreat Democrat, put in his place. We hope this will not be done. We have two reasons for it. In the first place, Mr. Lincoln is the easiest man defeated, and besides, Mr. Lineoin's withdrawal would heal the breach in the Republican party.

In the next place we do not coincide, in any degree, with the proposition that Mr. Liccoln is worse than his party, or that at y man of them would not do just as bed as he. The fault does not fie in the man at ail. It is deeper than that. It is in the principles of tha party liself. They will slwsys follow just the some course as Mr. Lipcoln has done. No matter under what name they have acted, they have always been the same-for what they are pleased to cell a strong Government, and which means a Government too strong for the liber. tles of the people.

The same party that passed the alies and sedition law favore arbitrary arrests and india riminate confiscation.

We hope the people will bear in mind if any jugglery of changing the candidates is attempted, whoever they may appoint will be just as and as Mr. Lincola, will be guilty of the same acts as he, and will floally become as unpopular as he. There is no uee Is changleg the men. The evil le in the party itself.

The Rumors locking to the appointment of commissioners are still current, and seem to be gaining strengili. The President has evidently been overawed by the weight of public opision in this matter, and the fears of his claims for re-election have led him to consider this question. It has had an effect upon him inclined to award to our own tieneral Lee the title of the greatest "peace commissioners are still current, and seem to bloody to entit the feelings and taste of the army that has no interest in the cause (x-spi) pay and tations; and his operations in Virginia cince the day he crossed the Rapidan have certainly turned the Northern mind more decidedly to thoughts of peace than any other agency whatsoever. INTERESTING FACTS AND FIGURES,-The following extract from the July number of Him.'s Marchant's Magralue contains soma faces and figures of general interest : When Mr. Chase first sseumed the poof Tressurer, the personal property of the North was, per censue, $2,020,000,000, the debt nominal and the currency associate it the last published, the debt is given $1,720,000 000, but it is well known that the real amount is many hundred millims in excess of that sum; in fact, the debt we belt we is nearly equal to the personal property in 1860; while the personal property itself has diminished in quantity during the wer. Of this debt shout $800,000 is in various forms of paper money, whi has depreciated to forty cents on the tion; so also two loans put on the market had fulled. The expenses for the coming year, catimated some mouths since, are about $1,000,000,000. Now with the currency forty cents per dollar, with the loans unproductive, and with all prices at a high level inflation, and daily rising, Mr. Fessonden is called upon to provide for the coming year. The task is not a light one. Its great dillimity consists in that inc. of the present high and increasing price of commodifier; and that all the taxes of the Government are taxes upon comumption or indirect taxes. There are no tax a apon property. This alternative then presents itself: If the present sevel of then presents likelf: If the present level of currency is maintained the expenses of the dovernment will be avoiled by the high prices to an extent equal to the product of the naw taxes. To illustrate—the Quertermantel's Bepartment bought last year 283,916,034 the same quantity now will cost $7,100,000. The same quantity now will cost $7,100,000. Then $2,800,000 of the increased tax is sunk in that one article. The ply of troops is higher; the same number of man and quabistences will cost 50 per cent. making $3,230,000. The same quantity now will cost $7,100,000. The same quantity now will cost $7,100,000. Then $2,500,000 of the increased tax is sunk in that one article. The pay of troops is higher; the same number of man and tubulence will cost 50 per cent. unore tule year; consequently the new taxes count nothing as a recourse, unless the present the present of the present en. prices are reduced.

the lievolution, the first Napoleon had been ordered out to disperse a body of rioters. Having drawn up his soldlers and some guns across the street, he waited their advance. They at length appeared, sweeping down on him and his party like a roaring torrent. The artillerymen, with their port-fires, atood ready at his signal to pour showers of grape into the body of the mot. Unwilling to shed blood, he steeped out from his men to reason with the suffering and misguided people, and soon found himself visa vis with their head, a virage of a woman, whose appearance presented a remarkable contrast to his own. She was of great size, and enormously fat; while he, always very little, was at that time so thin, as well as small, that he was known by the sobriquet of "La Intil Corporal." He remonstrated with the lady but she replied with voileys of abuse, teiling him that while she and other honest hardworking people were starving, such idde leiworking people were staving, such idle lellows as he and his soldiers were fattening on the best of the land. With that eagle eye and remarkable promptions which afterward turned the fute of many a battlefield, Naturned the fate of many a battlefield, Napoleon saw at once the weak point of his adversary's position. He paused till she was ont of breath. Then taking off his hat, he howed to the mob, and, placing his own till dure beside that of his lat opponent, he asked them to say whether the good lady or he leoked most like starving? As happens is more respectable assemblies than mobe, and clawhere than in witty France, a good humored jeke won the day, and the people, for the time at least, quietly dispersed.

BUTLER STILL BENT ON SUBJUGATION. -Tha editor of the Chicago Tribune, now on a visit to the army of the Potomac, thus speaks of General Butler :

No other man has so impressed us with his thorough and comprehensive grasp of public sifsits. He understands the rebellion, its causes and its cure, perfectly. He has no fears whatever that the South, when once its millwhatever that the saint, when the circle intri-tary and political leaders are driven ont, or killed, or captured and hung, will be difficult to govern. I a fact, it will, in his opinion, govern I sell peaceably and perfectly. The people there have been more accustomed to abmit to their leaders than the people of the submit to their leaders than the people of the North. Here there is more individual thoughs, more personal freedom, and parties more rapidly and more surely disintegrate under the influence of conflicting opinions. Hence, when once their influence traitor leaders are ont of the way, mingled as they will be with a larga emigration from the North and from Europe, they will rapidly become a quiet, orderly and highly prosperous people. This is the substance of General Butler's opinions, as gathered from a long conversation with The grain is nearly all gathered in.

task will be well performed. I have nutriter-ing latth; and that the people may sauction and God may be as these means to the desired end, is my present. The proceedings were thus opened with rayer by Ray. R. H. Clarkson, of the Protest-

int Episcopal chareh.

Os motion, Mesers. E. O. Perrin, of New York, G. M. Yurns, of New Jersey, and M. M., Stong, of Wisconsin, were appointed tempaent Episcopal charch. rary accretaries ary secretaries.

A list of delegates was then called by States and as each chuloman presented the creden-lais of his delegation he was welcomed with ond applause. Mr. Tilden, of New York, moved that one Mr. There, or New York, moved that one delegate be appointed by each delegation to report resolutions for the consideration of the Couvenior, and that all resolutions offered to the Couvenion be referred to each committee without debute. Carried.

Mr. Cox, of O lo, m vad the the commito on organization be lastracted to report alre for the government of the Convention, and that in the meantime the rules of the last Convention be adopted. Carried.

Mr. Powell, of Keutneky, stated that the contesting delegates from that State had agreed and were harmonions in this Couvention. He arone, therefore, to move that one member of each deligation be app i ted on the committee or resultations, the two to have but one vote. Carried. BEER, but one vote. Carried.

Mr. McDaugall, of California, moved that there be ramited to his Convention, not to exceed three genitemen, known to be members of the Damocratle party, from the acveral testicoles, and delegates to be permitted to participate in the debates, but with only nower to vote.

. Morgan, of Obio, moved to amend by and two S. cretaries at large. ex ending the privileges of the resolution to delegates from Sou here diates and the Darict of Columnia,

Mr. McDongail accepted the amendment.

Mr. Tiden, of New York, opposed the recolution, as it was manifest that no gentlement can be thus designated by the Unvention, who came here accredited to art as a m jurity or not represented by a consistence.

It m ght be otherwise, in r gird to territaries, if there were gustlemen from there accredited as we are, but under all circumstances the adoption of such a resolution would, is his judgment, be productive only of charistics and deorder. (Cheers.)

On motion the resolution was referred to be Committee on Gredentials.

A communication, eigned by J. S. Ribbte, Chairman of the Louisians delegation, was received, extring forth that he and his colleagues were properly accredited as delegates from Louisians, notwithstanding which the National Committee had refused them ticked. By Governor Hunt, of New York:
That in the future, as in the past, we will adhere with unswessing fidelity to the Union and the Constitution, and insist in maintaining our rational unity as the only solid foundation of our strength, scentity and happiness. As a people and as a framework of government, qually conducive to the welfare and properly of all States, both Northern and South erp, and with a view to terminate the pending rord et and restore the blessings of peace, we be in favor of an armistice to adjust terms of settlement and union on the basis of a contruction of the United States, and for a soluon of all differences. We would recommend convention of the States, to review the Constitution and adopt such amendments and stitution and adopt such amendments and modification as may seem necessary more fully to insure to ened State the enjoyment of all its rights and undisturbed control of its domestic concerns, according to the original intent and purposes of the Federal compact.

By Mr. Long, of Oblo:

**Resolved**, That a committer, to be composed. of one member from each State represented in this Convention, to be selected by the re-spective deligations thereof, be appointed for the purpose of proceeding forthwith to the city of Washington, on behalf of this Con-vention and people, to set Mr. Liccoin to sus-

To the Editors of the N. Y. Evening Post; My object in exposing the secrets of the prison-house to the public is the hope of attracting the attention of some persons more competent than myself to do justice to the subject and of instituting inquiries which may lead in time to the total abolition of private institutions for the insane; for I foar that no Governmental inspection would be sufficient to overcome the inherent vices on the subject in Governmental inspection would be sufficient to overcome the inherent vices of the subject in t My object in exposing the secrets of the of the system. The greatest of these is, that these private institutions are all worked for profit; thus the keepers are rendered venal, and any person who will pay a high price for board may imprison nearly any one he likes.

In the case of the institution I write of, insane patients are rarely if ever dis-charged upon recovery, unless their friends come and take them away. If the friends merely write to know how such a one ls, there is a stereotyped answer: "Improving; but all excitement would be dangerous; perfect quiet is necessary." Pursuit of profit leads to stinting in every department; and one physician, without the assistance of any other medical man, and not himself residing in the house, attends on two hundred patients, sane and insaue. The mortality, i fear, is large; but who knows? In an institution such as our State maintains at Utica, I think that the incidents I am about to relate could not have occurred.

Circulars were sent out, vaunting the fine ral lobsters prowling about, backing of the situation, and boasting of the out from the sea-weed, and seatter-cunners by their approach. Two small flounders had also made their ence, sliding along ou the bottom, roof. In some of the rooms, six insane men sleep together, and in one of these squads was a young man, not Insane, but Imbecile; hard study had broken down his mind. This lad incurred the hatred of a large and instantly surrounded by a crowd of powerful man, named Mic-, in the same room, and was often struck by him. The attendants proposed their separation; the ese from stealing the bait, and in a few despot refused or neglected to give the requisite orders, and one morning the poor sa lobster darted out of the sea-weed, shing among the crowd, as if to see was going on, put them to flight. He t seem to notice the bait himself, but rofessor, following his movements, define the merchant of the tempting morsel in front of his Presently he seized It with availity, any eyed it to his mouth. The prolet him have it for a minute, until his which it occurred. However, my business en, with great caution, slowly and pulled him up till his horns or feelers ed above the water. Seizing these, feesor drew the lebeter into the test of the sent, develop some very shocking traits in were somewhat entangled in the line, is with the imprisoned sane. The great facilities for what I may call family imprisonment which private institutions present, develop some very shocking traits in our nature. For instance: two ladies arrive with their mother, an old woman between eighty and ninely years of age, and with a failing intellect; but her daughters are eareful to state that she is not insane.

A NEAT AND COMPORTABLE HOUSE AND ADDRESS AND stant the creature felt his touch, It rive with their mother, an old woman beerely a piece of fish tied to the end one of these daughters was the wife of a judge, residing in the City of Washington Judge, residing in the City of Washington: nd caution. The lobster will let you the other was a dashing woman of the world, with daughters growing up and residing at a fashionable hotel, who remarkin the least, he is off like a flash. You edvery naively, to one of the matrons, that grab him the instant his horns are out "indeed, the increasing expenses of my daughters render the whole of mother's in-come necessary to us." The old lady died in about two years. She was probably as well attended as the nature of the place permitted; but where were her children, patience, when the professor, who atching his line on the opposite side pang and many a sleepless night? Heron pang and many a sleepless night? Heron tells us of a tribe of savages on the Coppermine river, who strangle their parents when they become old and burdensome. Of these two cases, which is the civilized, and which is the savage? I fear to enumerate the trivial grounds on which fathers commlt their daughters to ruly a large one, and hideous to look this living tomb, and I am amazed at the levity with which women generally are deprived of their liberty by daughters, hue-bands and fathers.

Mr. L., of Loudon county, Virginla, brought in his daughter, charged with disobedience. She was an innocent country girl of nineteen years. The girl's story was that after her mother's death her elder red it to his mouth. I pulled him up sisters made her a servant, called her Cin-an inch or two at a time, till his derella, and drove her to the kitchen. She derells, and drove her to the kitchen. She had, as we may imagine, constant quarrels with her eisters, and at length her father. has were within my reach.

Arab him!" said the professor, who had ched the proceedings anxiously.

was casier said than done. I put out says, "when he was sick, I was the only one to nurse him." Her only hope of reso much reluctance to run the risk of lease lay in the circumstance that her father, nocunter with his formidable claws, being a penurious man, might tire of paying before I had secured him, he let go the about in this way: her father was a Union man, and as such was sent to jail, where he spent one year in a loathsome cell, and had time to reflect upon the nature and efficacy of imprisonment, and when he gained his liberty he came and took her out, after two years of confinement.

I fear I am tiring the patience of my readers, and yet instances of this kind come up like Banquo's kings—another and another. Here is one: The case of Miss author of Palenth Miss another. Adverse Barfield. Nelson county, sty. another. Here is one: The case of Miss A ...... l'icture a young girl of slight and graceful figure, with a face wonderfully esembling that of the Empress Eugenie, but with color in her cheeks and fine glossy hair—well educated and a good musi-cian, possessing a voice of enchanting sweetness and great flexibility, and blessed with a generous and affectionate nature— The villegiatura has now become almost just nineteen years of age, and the daught interpretation of a "schooly millionaire," who was placed in this institution by her father for disobedience and for contemplating a marriage not liked by him. For this she has spent the past three years of her life in prison, and, for attempting to communicate with the outside world, was put in close confinement, wearing a straight jacket, and sometimes the iron mask, and otherwise receiving brutal treatment. This girl, of whom most fathers would have been proud, was often compelled to associate with women of the most abandoned character. Of rinkables, he can sit and hear superior this lady more hereafter.

The facility with which medical certificates can be procured would admit of a copious illustration from this house, although in most cases they are entirely distributed by the companion of the copious illustration and the copious illustration from this house, although in most cases they are entirely distributed by the copious copious copious cases they are entirely distributed by the copious copious copious copious copious copious copious copious cases and a permanent home will be given. Apply a part of clickth and Chestration copious c pensed with, as being, it would seem, a rivolous formality.

A young lady, who bears the name of one A of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and with his blood running in her velns, ate the bread of dependence at the table of a wealthy and proud uncle until it grew bitter. "You must stop these headaches," said her aunt one day, "or go to a boarding-house." She was procured a situation as governess in this city; but when this information reached the ears of the aristocratic uncle, his manner of acting shows the superior advantage of living in modern times and in a free country. Now Paris slumbers on through its hot, but had he lived in France in 1763, he would have been obliged to go on his bended knee to the royal minister or mistress for a lettre e cachet, signed by the hand of the great king, In order to have consigned his daughter to a convent. Mark the difference: he cal man. Armed with this, he sald: "Come with me, Mary." llis carriage was at the door, and in a few minutes they arrived at the gate of the Institution. "Enter." said ruled it. Presently a bustle was women ran to and fro, and handcuffs were called for. "What is the matter," asks one "Oh, nothing," was the answer "only she would not give up her money."

And now arrived the turning point in the > measures against her uncle, but no proceedings were ever instituted. I have in my possession the real names say that, much as I admire a woman who expresses honest indignation for the wrongs of others, yet I must decline for the present LOUISVILLE HYDRAULIC CEMENT. to comply with her request. Suitable measures are taken, and the name of this prison will appear in due time; but I beg her not to suppose that its care is singular.

There are many. I have no doubt its country just like it in character.
